

The Department of History and Archaeology
American University of Beirut

cordially invites you to a lecture on

The Idea of a History of the Ottoman Red Sea

by

Alexis Wick

Mr. Alexis Wick is currently a History PhD candidate at Columbia University, NY. He received his BA from Yale University, Cum Laude and with distinction in History in 2002, and earned a double MA one from the University of Paris VII – Denis Diderot and the other from Columbia University. He has a broad spectrum of historical interests including the nationalist thought of Amilcar Cabral and nationalism in mandatory Palestine.

Thursday, March 12, 2009
West Hall, Auditorium C
(Formerly Room 301)
5:00 P.M.