The Division of Health Professions at the Faculty of Health Sciences hosts a joint program in health professions between the Faculty of Health Sciences and Faculty of Medicine. The program offers three majors: Medical Audiology Sciences (MAS), Medical Imaging Sciences (MIS), and Medical Laboratory Sciences (MLS).

Mission

The Health Professions Program, run jointly by the Faculty Health Sciences and the Faculty of Medicine, provides excellent educational curricula in all its majors with intensive hands on training preparing students to deliver outstanding health services to the patient and the community. The Program conducts creative research linked to clinical medicine and public health. In all its functions, the Health Professions Program adheres to ethical values and promotes quality care with dignity and respect.

Vision

The Health Professions Program is a leading program in the Region preparing innovative and versatile health professionals who impact health and advocate patients’ rights.