Biographical Information

Mary R. Robinson received her BA in sociology from Duke University in 1949, her MA in Student Personnel Administration from Columbia University in 1957 and later from the Institute for Educational Management at Harvard University in 1977.

Her career started as Director of a Girls' Camp, of the Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA), Connecticut, New York, from 1948 to 1952. Later she served as Recreation and Club Director in Germany as part of the Department of the US Army, 1950-1952.

From 1952 to 1960, she held various positions, from House Counselor and Advisor to Student Activities at Duke University to Dean of Women at Eastern Washington State College, as well as Assistant Dean of Women and Assistant Professor at Oregon State University and Executive Director of the Young Women's Christian Association at West Virginia University.

From there, she would go on to join the American University of Beirut as the first Dean of Women from 1960 to 1969. She organized student university life, served as academic advisor to freshmen and sophomore students and gave weekly orientation sessions. During her tenure, she served as a consultant to several schools in Kuwait and Jordan. She also proved instrumental in crisis, such as student demonstrations and strikes, and especially the June War of 1967, where she coordinated the evacuation of hundreds of foreign students.

In 1969, she returned to Washington to occupying several positions at the Western Washington University until her retirement in 1990. First as Affirmative Action Officer, then as Associate Dean of Students, and later as Dean of Women from 1969 to 1977. She went on to serve as Acting Vice President for Student Affairs; before taking up the position of Vice Provost for Academic Administration from 1979 to June 1984; and later Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs from July 1984 to June 1985. Her final role at the university was as Associate Vice President for Human Resources and Affirmative Action Office from July 1985 to January 1990.
