Tutors

The following persons will act as tutors during the Summer Academy:

RADWA ASHOUR is Professor of English literature and former chairperson of the Department of English, Faculty of Arts, Ain Shams University, Cairo, Egypt. She obtained her PhD in African-American literature from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, 1975. She is an acclaimed novelist and a distinguished literary critic. Her widely acknowledged novel Granada Trilogy was awarded the first prize of The First Arab Woman Writers Book Fair, Cairo, November 1995. Among her other novels are Hajar Daffe' (Warm Stone), Cairo, 1985; Khadija wa Sawsan (Khadija and Sawsan), Cairo, 1989; Seraj (Seraj), Cairo, 1992; Atyaf (Shadows) Cairo, 1999; and Qit'aa min 'Urubba (A Slice of Europe), Beirut & Casablanca, 2003; and Cairo, 2003. Her critical books include at-Tariq 'ila 'l-Khaimat al-Ukhra (A Study of the Works of the Palestinian novelist and short story writer Ghassan Kanafani), Beirut, 1977; Gibran and Blake: A Comparative Study, Cairo 1978; Al-Tabi' Yanhad: al-Riwaya fi Gharb Ifriqiya (The Novel in West Africa), Beirut, 1980; and Fi 'l-Naqd at-Tatbiqi: Sayadu a- Zhakira (Critical Essays), Beirut, 2001. She has co-edited the four volume Zhakera lel-Mustaqbal: Mawsu'at al- Kateba al- 'Arabeya (Memory for the Future: A Guide to Arab Women Writers) Cairo, 2004.

MOURID BARGHOUTI is a Palestinian poet. He was born in Ramallah, Palestine, in 1944. He has published 14 books of poetry, the last of which is Muntasaf al-Lail (Midnight), Beirut, 2005. His Collected Works came out in Beirut in 1997. A Small Sun, his first poetry book in English translation, was published by The Aldeburgh Poetry Trust, 2003. He was awarded the Palestine Award for Poetry (2000). His poems are published in Arabic and international literary magazines. English translations of his poetry were published in Banipal, Times Literary Supplement and Modern Poetry in Translation. His autobiographical narrative Ra'ytu Ramallah (I Saw Ramallah), 1997, published in several editions in Arabic, won the Naguib Mahfouz Award for Literature (1997) and was translated into several languages; the English translation was published by the American University in Cairo Press as well as by Random House, New York and Bloomsbury, London; Barghouti participated in numerous conferences and poetry readings and festivals in almost all Arab countries and in several European cities. He lives in Cairo.

Edward Said described I saw Ramallah as “one of the finest existential accounts of Palestinian displacement we now have.” and John Berger wrote that I Saw Ramallah was “a bedside book if ever there was one, unforgettable memories, razor insights, name –games, stories with eyes closed, no conclusions, only the passionate pain of exile, recounted at the end of the day by a true poet.”

SABRY HAFEZ is Professor of Modern Arabic Literature and Drama at the Department of the Near & Middle East at the SOAS, London. He is the head of the research project “Narrating and Imaging the Nation” at SOAS. He received his M.A. from the Academy of Arts, Cairo, Egypt, in 1970 with the thesis: “Chekhov’s Drama – a Critical Study of his Plays” and his Ph.D. in Modern Arabic Literature from the SOAS in 1979 with his thesis: “The Rise and Development of the Egyptian Short Story (1881-1970)”. He has been affiliated with various institutions such as the Higher Institute of Dramatic Arts, Cairo (1971-73), St. Antony’s College, University of Oxford (1978-79), the American University of Cairo, (1980-81), the University of Edinburgh, (1981-82), the Institute of Oriental Languages, University of Stockholm, and the Institute of Semitic Studies, University of Uppsala, (1982-84). He has been Visiting Professor at the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures, University of California at Los Angeles, (1985-86), and has taught at the SOAS since 1988. Among his publications in English are: The Genesis of Narrative Discourse: A Study in the Sociology of Modern Arabic Literature, (London, Al-Saqi Books, 1992) and The Modern Egyptian Short Story: A Study in the Development of a Literary Genre (forthcoming).

ANGELIKA NEUWIRTH teaches Arabic literature, classical and Modern at Free University Berlin. Her research focus is on Qur’anic Studies on the one hand and the aesthetic dimensions of Near Eastern social practices reflected in literature, on the other. She has been the director of the Orient Institut der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft in Beirut and Istanbul (1994-99), and has since taken particular interest in the de-limitation of arts, genres and styles that is typical of Levantine culture. Among her recent publications are 'Myths, historical archetypes and symbolic figures in Arabic Literature - Towards a new hermeneutic approach' (with Birgit Embalo, Sebastian Günther & Maher Jarrar, eds.) Beirut/Wiesbaden 1999, 'Ghazal as World Literature I: Transformations of a literary genre', (with Thomas Bauer, eds.) Beirut/Würzburg 2005, 'Ghazal as World Literature II: From a literary genre to a Great Tradition'. 'Ottoman gazel in context' (with Börte Sagaster, Judith Pfeiffer & Michael Hess, eds.) Beirut/Würzburg 2006. 'Arabische Literatur, postmodern' (with Andreas Pflitsch & Barbara Winckler, eds.) München 2004.

FRIEDERIKE PANNEWICK since 2005 is Associate Professor of Arabic Language and Literature, University of Oslo. She received her PhD (Dr. phil.) in Arabic and Theater Studies from Free University Berlin in 1999 with a thesis on the notions of theatricality and performance in Arab theater, her M.A. in 1993 from FU Berlin in Arabic and Turkish Studies. From 2001-2005 she has been the director of the project Cultural Mobility in Near Eastern Literatures within the Working Group ‘Modernity and Islam’ and since 2006 is co-director of the project Traveling Traditions. Comparative Perspectives on Middle Eastern Literatures within the Working Group ‘Europe in the Middle East – the Middle East in Europe’, both at the Wissenschaftskolleg zu

Berlin. Among her publications are 'Das Wagnis Tradition. Arabische Wege der Theatralität.' Wiesbaden (2000); 'Bio-bibliographischer Survey der modernen palästinensischen Dichtung.' Neuwirth, Embaló, Pannewick. Beirut, Würzburg.(2001); Martyrdom in Literature. Visions of Death and Meaningful Suffering in Europe and the Middle East from Antiquity to Modernity. Ed. F. Pannewick. Wiesbaden.(2004).

SAMAH SELIM is an independent scholar and translator of modern Arabic literature. She received her Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1997, and has taught Arabic and Comparative Literature at Columbia and Princeton Universities. Her book, The Novel and the Rural Imaginary in Egypt 1880-1985, was published by Routledge Press in 2004. She was a fellow of the Working Group Modernity and Islam in 2004/5 and is currently a Fellow of the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin (Institute for Advanced Study), and Associate Researcher at the Institut de Recherches et d'Etudes sur le Monde Arabe et Musulman in Aix-en-Provence. She is currently co-director of the project Traveling Traditions: Comparative Perspectives on Middle Eastern Literatures within the Working Group 'Europe in the Middle East – the Middle East in Europe', both at the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin. Her ongoing work focuses on translation and popular fiction in turn-of-the-century Egypt.
