Cross-Cultural Psychological Assessment Lab Leader: Professor Shahe S. Kazarian

The Cross-Cultural Psychological Assessment Lab is devoted to cross-cultural psychological testing research to contribute to mainstreaming culture in psychology internationally and to promote best practices in test development, translation, adaptation, and standardization regionally. Over the past decade, various psychological assessment topics have been studied by my graduate students and I including attachment styles, psychological distress, emotion regulation, humor styles, family functioning, and subjective well-being (see Appendix A). Our research activities on personality assessment tools have been published in peer-reviewed journals and presented locally, regionally and international.
