The Salim El-Hoss Bioethics and Professionalism Program at the American University of Beirut Faculty of Medicine handed out the prestigious “Humanism and Professionalism Award” for Physician and Resident for the year 2012. This Award is the first of its kind in the Arab world as it emphasizes the importance of humanism in medicine. It enhances the message that medicine is not only a scientific skill but that also humanism, ethics and caring are essential in the practice of medicine.

Dr. Thalia Arawi, Founding Director of the Program, launched this Award this year. According to Arawi, this is an important award which is granted to a physician/resident who exemplifies the humane and professional aspects of medicine, who is exceptionally proficient, compassionate, kind, responsible and concerned for the welfare of patients, colleagues, staff and students; is a remarkable role model; is self-reflective about his/her own continuing development as a physician; and reveals integrity and professionalism in all he/she does. This year’s recipient of the Salim El-Hoss Humanism and Professionalism Physician Award was Dr. Nabil Sharara from the Department of Family Medicine. While the Salim El-Hoss Humanism and Professionalism Resident Award went to Dr. Hossein Darwish from the Neurosurgery Division.

The Awards were presented during the early stages of the Residents Graduation Ceremony in June 2012 at the Issam Fares Hall. Following a brief address by Dr. Arawi, the Associate Dean Dr. Kamal Badr, and Dr. Arawi presented the Awards to the respective awardees.
