

Ghada Hamdar Hamati

Ghada Hamdar Hamati joined AUBMC in 1990. Throughout her years at AUBMC, Mrs. Hamati has worked continuously on her self-development and on mastering new work techniques.

She always attends to her duties in full: Staying beyond “office hours” has never been a concern for her as long as her duties are completely performed. Over the years, she received many letters of appreciation from her patients and their families for attending to their emotional needs, for being calm and for providing explanation of the medical procedures they are about to have.

Ghada is also a meticulous technical and administrative person who pays extra care in preserving the durability and proper usage of the equipments under her responsibility. She prepares, sterilizes, and cares for the operating room equipment and supplies in a way that shows a high degree of reliability and care.

Ghada’s participation in the OR renovations was a major contributor to the success of the project. She approached the task with the same enthusiasm as if she was renovating her own house.

Her sense of responsibility is also apparent in the way she provides orientation and trainings for new staff and by the respect and devotion they show in return.

All in all Ghada is a valuable example of the nurse who devotes herself to creativity, and to promoting patients’ rights, privacy and dignity.
