

Rafic Hariri School of Nursing

Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN)

The BSN program is registered by the Department of Education of New York State and accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education in the United States. Applicants with a recognized secondary school diploma are eligible for this program that focuses on theory and research as the basis for practice.

Pioneering Achievements

and Global Vision

Objectives

The program prepares generalists to provide high quality humanistic care to a multicultural clientele in various health care settings.

Admission Requirements

- » Students admitted with the Lebanese Bacculaureate or equivalent who enter as sophomores are required to complete 103 credit hours over a period of three academic years and two summer sessions.
- » Students admitted with other secondary school certificates who enter as freshman are required to complete 133 credit hours over a period of four academic years and two summer sessions.

Curriculum

The program combines a liberal arts education with professional nursing education in both academic and clinical settings. Students take courses at the Hariri School of Nursing and other AUB faculties. Clinical experience is provided in hospitals and community settings in cooperation with various health care agencies.

Students take courses in English and Arabic, the humanities, economics and social sciences, basic medical sciences, and nursing. Nursing courses include classroom teaching and clinical training in health-care settings. Students are required to take four electives and can choose from a wide selection of courses in humanities such as ethics, poetry, philosophy, politics etc.

Pioneering Achievements

and Global Vision