Philosophy, Sciences and Theology in the Islamicate World of the Ninth Century

October 21-22, 2019 | 9:00 am–5:00 pm
College Hall, Auditorium B1

Co-Sponsored by:

Farouk Jabre Centre for Arabic and Islamic Sciences and Philosophy

The joint project “Galen in Arabic (GAIA) – More than a Translation” (ANR & FWF)

The conference aims at investigating points of contact between falsafa, the scientific tradition and early kalâm during the formative period. The focus on the reception of the Greek (including Byzantine) logical and epistemological tradition in the ninth century will enable us to examine how creative appropriations of past theories and new ideas crystallized to meet new intellectual challenges in a period in which these interactions were particularly intense.
